

Project 1 Design Rationale

This website is intended for potential employers looking to hire me for internships. As I am not very artistic, I obtained some beautiful images from my favorite hobby: a card game called Magic the Gathering. I opted to have a nice heading banner with my name on it in, using white text surrounded by a black border so it would show up on any background. For the text in my biography, I kept it simple black and white so it would look a bit more professional, as well as keeping it easy to read. I included a profile of myself for employers to better picture me. As for the menu bar, I put white text on a black bar so it would blend better into the darker background picture that I choose for the website.

On the “games” page, I included the 5 various php form elements that we learned in class such as radio buttons, selective list, and input text boxes. I thought it would be cool to take a “about me” quiz. In addition, I had extensive php to calculate each person’s score after he/she took the quiz. I even had an array to calculate different parts of the quiz. On the “contact me” page, I also had extensive php to make sure the fields the user inputted were not empty before using the mail() function of php.
